Dr. Jason Fields is the Survey Director for the Survey of Income and Program Participation (SIPP) at the U.S. Census Bureau. His research has focused on the development and evaluation of an event history calendar based SIPP household sample survey, the development of paradata based survey evaluation and management, adaptive research designs for a longitudinal context, and panel survey methodology. He is a family demographer by training and whose areas of substantive interest include children's living arrangements and well-being, marriage and cohabitation, intergenerational exchanges, and inequality.
