The Center for Social and Demographic Analysis

COLLOQUIUM

“Communication as a Social Determinant of Health: Evidence from Los Angeles and New York”

by

Matthew Matsaganis, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor
Department of Communication
University at Albany, SUNY

Friday, February 14, 2014
3:30pm

Business Administration Building – Room B-29
University at Albany (Main Campus)

Matthew Matsaganis (Ph.D., University of Southern California) is first author of Understanding Ethnic Media: Producers, Consumers & Societies (SAGE Publications, 2011; with Vikki Katz and Sandra Ball-Rokeach) and co-editor of “Communicative Cities in the 21st Century” (Peter Lang, 2013; with Vicki Gallagher and Susan Drucker). His research addresses the role of communication in building community capacity, health disparities and the social determinants of health, issues of ethnic media consumption, production and sustainability, as well as the social impact of technology. His research has been published in the Journal of Health Communication, Journalism, Human Communication Research, the Electronic Journal of Communication, the Journal of Information Policy, American Behavioral Scientist, and the Encyclopedia of International Media and Communications. He has presented his work at a number of academic and professional conferences. Matthew sits on the board of directors of the Urban Communication Foundation. He is also a recovering print journalist who has worked for a variety of publications in Athens, Greece, and New York City.

Reception following talk